

Table of Contents

Introduction

Joselito B. Zulueta ix

Reminiscences

Diyos Ti Agngina, Manong: A Tribute to F. Sionil Jose
Maria L.M. Fres-Felix 1

A Pilgrimage
Angelo R. Lacuesta 4

F. Sionil Jose and Me
Geraldine C. Maayo 9

Tribute to an Old Friend
Cristina Pantoja Hidalgo 13

Remembering: The 95th Birthday Celebration of Francisco Sionil Jose
Rita B. Gadi 16

Manong Frankie: The Writerly Grandfather I Never Had
Ralph Semino Galán 18

Remembering Manong Frankie in Tokyo
Jose Wendell P. Capili 21

Frankie and Tessie: Reflections on the Passing of F. Sionil Jose (1924-2022)
Cecilia Manguerra Brainard 23

Dishing with the Master
Menchu Aquino Sarmiento 28

F. Sionil Jose Came at the Right Moments in My Life Elizabeth Lolarga	30
Bagnet Salad and a Bookstore Alma Anonas-Carpio	35
F. Sionil Jose: “Our most important asset is memory.” Alma Cruz Miclat	39
F. Sionil José: In Memoriam Ambeth Ocampo	43
Solidarity Manuel Quezon III	45
The Quintessential F. Sionil Jose Francisco S. Tatad	47
Remembering Manong Frankie Christine Godinez-Ortega	52
Frankie Ricardo M. de Ungria	60
F. Sionil José, Lusty and Prolific Up to the Very End Lito B. Zulueta	63
Criticism
Po-on: From Darkness to Darkness Jaime An Lim	69
F. Sionil Jose and His Women Characters Loreta L. Fajardo	81
Answerable Only to Ourselves: F. Sionil Jose’s Mass and National Amnesia Hope Sabanpan-Yu	92
Unmasking the Polite and the Perfumed: F. Sionil Jose’s The Feet of Juan Bacnang as Allegory of an Ailing Nation Amado Cabus Guinto, Jr.	100

Leaving Rosales, Leaving Sipnget: Trauma and History in F. Sionil José's My Brother, My Executioner Shirley O. Lua	112
Pinoy Ako, Pinoy Tayo: Fashioning the Fragmentary Filipino Identity John Jack G. Wigley	125
Tributes
Frankie Was the First True ASEAN Citizen Edwin Thumboo	133
Remembering Manong Frankie Robert Yeo	134
The Conscience of the Nation: Remembering the Great F. Sionil Jose James Fallows	137